Paraíso Perdido (Portuguese Edition) John Milton

Paraíso Perdido (em inglês: Paradise Lost) é uma obra poética do século XVII, escrita por John Milton, originalmente publicada em 1667 em dez cantos. Uma segunda edição foi publicada em 1674 em doze cantos, em memória à Eneida de Virgílio com revisões menores ao longo do texto e notas sobre os versos. O poema descreve a história cristã da "queda do homem", através da tentação de Adão e Eva por Lúcifer e a sua expulsão do Jardim do Éden. Esta epopeia inspira-se no Gênesis, demonstrando preocupação de ordem puritana. Lúcifer, sabendo que uma nova raça irá ocupar o lugar dos anjos rebelados, resolve agir. Deus prevê a perdição do homem e sua possível redenção, caso alguém se sacrifique por ele. O Filho oferece-se em holocausto, e o homem, mesmo antes da queda, já se acha redimido. Deus ordena ao arcanjo Rafael que previna os pais da humanidade sobre os projetos diabólicos. O arcanjo relata-lhes a rebelião dos anjos e a sua consequente precipitação no inferno. Mas Eva deixa-se seduzir, e induz também Adão ao pecado. Adão sofre as consequências da falta irremediável e tem uma visão na qual contempla tudo que acontecerá em tempos futuros até o nascimento de Cristo. Com a morte física deste, o homem salvar-se-á. Em seu poema, Milton estilizou o verso branco com admirável perícia e amplo domínio de técnica.
