Across Patagonia: A Journey Through Southern Argentina and Chile Marcel van der Meer

A distant region with a magical name: Patagonia - the end of the world, a place of wild nature where more animals than people live and where it is always windy. This book takes the reader along the vast plains and mountain ranges of Southern Argentina and Chile. It's not just a travelogue but it's also a story about encounters between people - fellow travelers, gauchos, an almost extinct tribe, each with their own story. Aside from photography, Marcel van der Meer also has a great passion for traveling. He was born in Pijnacker in 1968 and is currently living in Amsterdam. From there, he regularly travels the world in search of adventures. Patagonia has fascinated him since childhood. When he was a little boy, he studied the world map. He was convinced that he was going to visit this part of the world.
